The details of the major items of expenditure which contributed to the excesses, for which legal authority is now required, over the amounts provided under the various Heads by the Appropriation and Supplementary Appropriation Ordinances, are shown hereunder. This is because the additional sums appropriated under each Head represent the net overall increase in expenditure, and in all cases, the extra expenditure detailed below was partially offset by savings under other sub-heads of the same Head.

As agreed at the Constitutional Conference in 1958, these Orders in Council will cease to have effect in Nigeria six months after Independence. Provision is made under section 65 of the Constitution of the Federation for Parliament to make laws for the purpose of maintaining and securing peace, order and good government during any period of emergency. Provisions of law enacted in pursuance of this section have effect only during a period of emergency, and "period of emergency" is defined in that section as any period during which:

(a) the Federation is at war; or

(b) there is in force a resolution passed by each House of Parliament declaring that a state of public emergency exists; or

(c) there is in force a resolution of each House of Parliament supported by the votes of not less than two-thirds of all the members of the House declaring that democratic institutions in Nigeria are threatened by subversion.

2. This Bill provides powers for the Government to make Regulations during a period of emergency, as defined in the Constitution, for the purposes there envisaged. In particular regulations may be made for the detention and deportation of persons, the requisition of property or undertakings, the entering and search of premises, the amending or suspension of any law and the punishment of persons offending against the regulations.
